

PRESS RELEASE

Audiobulb Records Release

Artist: Autistici (Reworked)
Title: Resonating Wires

Cat number: AB032
Format: Digipak CD & Digital Download
Description: 10 resonating wires lovingly recrafted.
Release date: September 6th 2010

Autistici

Autistici is David Newman the label head of Audiobulb Records. Over the last decade he has released music on 12k, KESH, Audiobulb Records and many net labels. His work usually exists within the zone of abstract experimental sound design, sculptured ambience and microsound. This allows his attention detail and love of tint sounds to interplay with melodic and/or abstract resonant textures. Autistici is an active member of the UK electronic community and was recently invited by Lou Reed to perform at VIVID live @ Sydney Opera House.

Resonating Wires

Resonating Wire started as one vibrating wire from an acoustic guitar, captured, sculptured and morphed into a buzzing pad of noise. Tiny details were added, xylophone, cello, double bass, electronics and the crumpled sound of household objects exploited and manipulated. The original track can be found on the album Complex Tone Test released on KESH.

Resonating Wires sees the process start again. It is an album of remixes by talented artists. It is also an album in its own right. That one vibrating wire and all the other elements are open to intense reinterpretation. The countless possibilities are explored and the palette is expanded. From Simon Scott's minimal beginning, Bluermutt's electro awaking, Sawako's gentle and intimate vocalisations, Behan's resonant and distorted drive, Lopez brings it back to minimal sounds objects, Isan, Hawgood & Norbury expand the original structures, Varis examines his world of disjointed objects, Chartier settles us with minimalism before He Can Jog's warm electronic retro ending. Audiobulb has always been about the spirit of exploration. The aim is to stay with the moment and exploit the possibilities of sound. Resonating Wires aims to provide the listener with a journey through the possibilities of sound – at times quiet and minimal with space to breathe. At times loud and complex, building an all encompassing presence. With this wire we are sound.

Artwork: Conor Dardis @ www.designbyhouse.com

Thank you for your support in listening, playing and writing about this release – it is truly appreciated.